MAKING A DIFFERENCE TOGETHER

Humanists International isn't just a network — it's a catalyst for positive change.

We empower our members to create a ripple effect of progress. We have witnessed the impact firsthand.

Our Grant Program enabled us to fund Faithless Hijabi, an Associate member, in their vital work supporting the mental health of former Muslims. By providing essential resources and outreach, their program offers a lifeline to individuals navigating the challenges of leaving their faith.

With support from Humanists International's Advocacy team, members in Malawi, Nigeria, India, and Uganda submitted a report to the UN on harmful traditional practices and accusations of "witchcraft." This crucial contribution helped shape a subsequent report by the Independent Expert on Albinism.

Humanists International's support enabled member organizations worldwide to effectively defend the rights of humanists at risk. Through their joint efforts, they successfully contested unjust asylum rulings, offering essential aid to those in need.

Humanists International does important work publicizing Freedom of Thought (in their annual report) and helping humanists under threat for expressing their beliefs. In addition it connects Humanist groups around the world to collectively act to protect human rights. I also enjoy opportunities to meet and collaborate with humanists from other countries.

It is of great importance to spread internationally the position of non-believers, emphasizing the responsibility of human beings themselves, in addition to the numerous tolerant and especially non-tolerant religions in the world.

Work with other humanists, in my case: the Latin-American humanists, has opened my perspective to the diversity of problematics that humanists experience in their countries. It has showed that we cannot just tend to the theoretical humanist values. There are real world human problems that affect us all. Hearing the problems that other experience and how they have overcome these helps my organization learn from other's lessons.

Humanists International is a very strong international organisation having a large network all over the world. It really helps instantly to humanists at risk. Also promotes humanism at all possible levels in the society. Through the 'freedom of thought report' it gives the voice to the injustice and underprivileged marginalise communities in all parts of the world.

Humanist International gave me hope. I don't remember the exact moment when or how I first came into contact with Humanist International, but looking back, I can see the changes that have occurred in my efforts to promote non-religious secular values. I came from being a hopeless dreamer who had almost given up on his organization's ability to impact secular values, to finding a community of progressive support, educational resources, and great opportunities for boosting the much-needed humanist advocacy in the third-world. The task ahead now is to broaden the platform to increase other people's chances of getting the same help.
